

Together We Create an Impact

“If a young person already struggles with insecurity or impulsive behavior, then social media will amplify the impact of an already existing issue.”

Rambabu Kushwaha, Newgen employee

This thought-provoking quote set the tone for an inspiring week full of learning, creativity, and community spirit. The CSR Week was a success to rave about. The CSR initiative for digital literacy and financial independence was celebrated with passion. It was a shout out to the achievements of the women of the skill development centre.

The week started with the quiz and the selfie competition. Many Newgenites shared their enthusiasm by answering CSR questions and clicking lively pictures. The #WritetoInspire competition revealed some inspired thoughts about the growth of adolescents in our country.

The debates highlighted pressing issues and recognized some bright students. The senior students explored whether the government should invest more in economic growth or environmental issues. The younger students pondered over the impact of global warming. Both the debates tackled some insightful thoughts and concerns.

The women's declamation was held between the women of the skill development centre. They explored their ideas about 'Women and their Identity'. All the participants talked about their shared joy of working, moving out of the house and being financially independent.

The week concluded with a special highlight on Newgen's Founders Day, April 1st, through an exhibition showcasing handcrafted items created by the women of the Skill Development Centre. Each product made from recycled materials, not only reflected creativity and sustainability but also marked a financial milestone for the women involved.

The CSR week started with the objective of being together and creating an impact. It brought everyone together. It created awareness and celebrated hard work. The impact of the CSR week is visible through the changes that happened in the lives of the children and the women. We can hear their voices better now!
